

Innovation Centre off to Oceanology 2014 in London

Submitted by Virginia Keast Mon, 2014-03-10 17:43

Ocean Network Canada's Innovation Centre is gearing up for Oceanology International, the major global event for ocean technology networking, running from March 11 to 14 in London.

Held every two years, Oceanology 2014 features over 525 exhibitors, including a substantial Canadian Pavilion where Innovation Centre director Scott McLean, and Jeff Bosma from the Sensor & Instrumentation team, will be hosting booth P200 and connecting with attendees from over 35 countries.

It's considered the largest global forum where the marine technology and ocean science communities can share their latest knowledge with industry, academia and governments.

Established in 1969, Oceanology also features the world's largest exhibition for marine science and technology sector, several agenda-setting technical conferences, visiting vessels and waterside demonstrations.
