

Warming Ocean Temperatures off BC coast

Submitted by Virginia Keast Mon, 2014-11-24 10:24

Dr. Richard Dewey, Associate Director of Science reports temperature increases and concerns for marine species along the B.C. coast. Off the coast of Vancouver Island, data from the NEPTUNE observatory's Folger Passage site is recording warmer ocean temperatures. "The whole ecosystem is impacted by these changes," he said in a recent interview with CBC.
